Newsletter 16 09.01.26 There are still a lot of winter bugs about so attendance has fallen slightly to 96.2% this week.

Don't forget, Rev Sarah's 'Rector's Rambling' available by CLICKING HERE Always an interesting and inspiring read.

We hope you all enjoyed a fabulous Christmas period with your families. We were, once again, overwhelmed by the generosity of your Christmas gifts and well-wishes to staff. On behalf of all the staff, sincere and heartfelt thanks to you all. Your support and love is much appreciated

Welcome back to the start of 2026 and an exciting new school term. There is all sorts going on between now and Easter and learning has kicked-off with great enthusiasm and a hive of exciting activity this week. It has been wonderful to see the children return to class and be inspired by new learning themes and engaging 'hook' activities to spark their interest. Do take time to read about what each class has been up to.

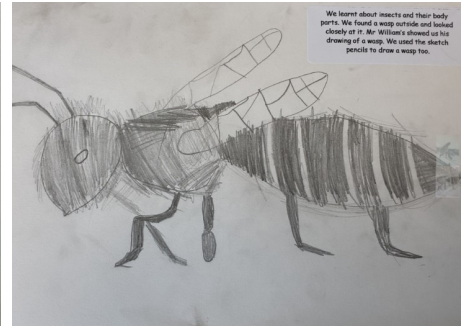

STEMtastic Propulsion - Chestnut Children had some careful thinking and designing to do as soon as they returned to class for 2026, in order to solve a tricky boat design STEM challenge. Combining their skills in Science, Technology, Engineering and Maths, they were given a range of materials and tasked with designing and building a boat, propelled by a (elastic band) wind-up motor. Their boats were tested in open water, well, a piece of guttering filled with water in the classroom, with impressive results!

The next day, an iceberg appeared in the classroom, as inspiration for the current learning about the history of the Titanic disaster. As luck would have it, there was plenty of ice available in our school grounds during the chilly first half of the week, so Mrs Johnson was able to float a 'bucket-berg' in a tank of water, so that the children could carefully observe the proportion of ice showing above the surface, compared to that which lurked below!

Let's look closely

Apple class have just started a learning journey about mini-beasts and have been 'Looking Closely' at pictures of insects this week. Sometimes, things happen that are unplanned that but perfectly with our learning and add an extra element of excitement. Having just learnt about insect body parts, the children were very excited to find a (slightly drowsy) wasp in the outside area. After a brilliant discussion and a close look at it, the wasp was carefully placed in the hedge away from harms way to continue its sleep. Later that afternoon, the children produced some stunningly detailed sketches of the wasp.

Terrific Tiger Transformation!

Maple Class children were excited to find the outlines of some animals hiding in the undergrowth on their class room display board when they arrived on Tuesday. There was a very plain looking parrot and the outline of what, at the time, resembled a sparkling white polar bear. It didn't take our marvellous Maples long to sort the problem. Embracing their topic theme 'Don't let them disappear' and employing brilliant painting skills, between them the children have transformed the very plain cat into the most spectacular tiger. Stunning work, Maples!

What's the State of Matter Beech Class?

It's been a mixture of science and mystery in Beech Class this week. Arriving on Tuesday to a laboratory of colourful liquids and bubbling bottles, the children began to explore their science learning for the term, 'States of Matter'. It was when some very large footprints appeared in class along with a 'Please help us' message from somebody calling themselves The Giant Scientist, that things took a mysterious turn. We don't yet know who the Giant Scientist is, but this mystery has certainly sparked the children's imagination and several of them have been keen to share their theories already. Later that afternoon, as with Chestnut Class, the freezing weather helped to provide an impromptu learning opportunity for Beech Class, in the form of a completely frozen swimming pool. On closer inspection, we couldn't believe that it was solid to a depth of about 10cm. Mr Williams had to work hard to make just a tiny hole with a hammer!

Attendance, punctuality and arrival at school

Thank you for the really good effort to start the new year off with good habits, ensuring your children are in school and ready to start their learning at 8.30am.

When something doesn't go according to plan and you are a little late, if the playground has cleared of children, please go to the front door and report to the office, rather than trying to access the classrooms directly.

There is no adult supervision outside at this point and for security and safeguarding purposes, we must lock the pedestrian gates as soon as possible.

There are a lot of winter bugs around at the moment so understandably, absence due to illness has risen either side of the Christmas break.

A reminder please that you should use your discretion as parents regarding when your child is ready to return to school following a cough or cold related illness. However, where they suffer vomiting or diarrhoea, they MUST remain at home until 48 hours after the last instance of this, to help reduce the risk of passing anything on.

Finally, since there is an immediate bombardment of holiday advertising in the media as soon as Christmas Day is over, you may be thinking about planning a holiday for the coming year.

A reminder please that in line with Bishop Luffa Partnership Policy and Local Authority Policy, authorisation of absence for a term time holiday will not be given for anything other than very exceptional circumstances. Unauthorised absence of more than 5 school days may result in referral for a fixed penalty notice from the Local Authority.

Please work with us and support us in this. We know that the cost of holidays goes up when schools break up — it does for us too — but there are 13 non-school weeks a year and your child's education and time in school is relatively short and therefore precious. It isn't just about the individual lessons they miss, it's about gaps in the sequence of learning that occur and, particularly where absence occurs close to a school holiday, the important social opportunities children miss.

Fruit and Milk for the Spring Term.

If your child would like to have a drink of milk and a fruit snack at break time this can be booked on our Arbor payments system.

Milk for the Spring Term - £6.50

Fruit for the Spring Term - £6.50

If your child is in Apple or Maple Class fruit is provided free of charge under a Government funded scheme, there is no need to book this.
